ABSTRACT:

PURPOSE: To simplify or abolish manuals attached to individual products and facilitate the retrieval of the manual, and to save the labor for product information management and user support on a maker side which provides the products by storing information regarding the products such as the manuals in a data base in the form of electronic data, and optionally retrieving them through a network.

CONSTITUTION: It is made possible to obtain information characteristic of a product by a bar code reader on a home terminal 2 or in-company terminal 9 connected to the article detailed information data base 6 which stores information regarding products through a data communication network 5 and a trunk data communication network 4. At a retrieval request made through the keyboard, the terminal main body sends retrieval request information out to the trunk data base communication network 4 to access the product detailed information data base 6 according to the information, and obtained article information on a product is displayed on a display unit, so that the information regarding the product can be obtained on a on-line basis in real time.
